Standing desks have been gaining in popularity over the past few years as the benefits of getting out of your chair are becoming more understood. As opposed to sedentary work, standing to work at your computer can help combat obesity, lower blood sugar levels, lower your risk of heart disease, reduce back pain, and a myriad of other health benefits. Better yet, standing to work has been shown to increase your energy and improve your mood, allowing you to do better, more efficient work. Some research even suggests that standing at work can help you live longer. If that's not enough to make you consider a standing desk, nothing will be.
