

A Disney, Hulu, and Max streaming bundle is on the way

There's a new streaming bundle coming to town. Disney and Warner Bros. Discovery are teaming up to offer Disney Plus, Hulu, and Max in a bundle that will become available in the US this summer.

The new bundle will include both ad-supported and ad-free options, but there's still no word on how much it will cost. Disney and Warner Bros. Discovery say they will share "additional details" about the bundle in the "coming months." Once available, you'll be able to purchase the bundle from Disney Plus, Hulu, or Max's website.

"On the heels of the very successful launch of Hulu on Disney+, this new bundle with Max will offer subscribers even more choice and value," Joe Earley, Disney's president of direct-to-consumer, says in a statement. Warner Bros. Discovery is set to release its earnings results on Thursday, and a report from Bloomberg suggests that the company will announce more layoffs and implement another price hike.

<https://www.theverge.com/2024/5/8/24152397/disney-plus-hulu-max-streaming-bundle>