In this video, Entrepreneur Network partner Mike Phillips talks about how to make your dreams and passions a reality. You can do so by doing just one thing: Taking action.

Phillips stresses specificity when establishing your goals. When you take action, you will always be met with an end result, but the quality of that result will line up with how specific are you in your goal. If you want subpar results, then set unclear goals.

Be wary of the influence of others' opinions. Phillips stresses that you shouldn't be stopped by others opinions if you are passionate and eager about your goals. The perfect plan, if never executed, will never see results. To truly see progress and achieve your goals, you have to take action!
