London UK

https://www.agent3.com/

We’re looking for freelance designers, hungry to help us push the boundaries of B2B and work with some massive, global brands.

Ideally, you’ll join us 2-3 days a week and hot desk from our office in London Bridge. There’s also the possibility to join us full-time for the right person.

Role Details

We’re looking for excellent designers and great humans to grow our network of freelancers. Initially, this is to work 2-3 days per week on a freelance basis—ideally hot desking from our office in London Bridge—but we’re also interested in growing our core creative team, so there’s an opportunity to go full-time for the right person.

We’d love for you to work with us at our office 2-3 days a week, to involve you with our wider team, and to immerse you in our clients brands as you’ll be working across a variety of projects—both on client work, and helping us develop our internal branding.

We do a lot of different work—from digital projects, to social advertising, to packaging solutions, to printed reports—so we’re looking for someone who looooooves design and wants to get experience across a range of different projects.

A bit about us:

Agent3 is a young B2B marketing with offices across London, New York and San Francisco. As an agency, we specialise in a type of targeted, high-level marketing called Account Based Marketing (ABM). We offer a variety of services and digital products, working with large, global clients like BT, Sony, CA, Tata Communications, Autodesk and Veritas (to name a few), with projects varying across a wide range of applications including digital, print and packaging.

In the past 6 months, we've been focused on restructuring our creative team to better scale as we continue to grow. We're a small team that handles a lot of different projects and process—both for internal brand work and client work—and we're looking for designers hungry to help us push the boundaries of B2B and work with some massive, global brands.
