Greetings, Arsians! The Dealmaster is back with another round of deals to share. Today's list is highlighted by a new low on the 256GB variant of Samsung's EVO Select microSDXC card. It's currently down to $37, which is $6-$8 off where it has usually sat over the last couple of months.

We have recommended the EVO Select before—the gist of it today is that, while it's not the highest-performing card for running apps or handling the OS for a Raspberry Pi, it's still plenty fast for copying photos to a device, recording 4K video, downloading movies, and generally storing media. It's a U3, Class 10 card with a 10-year warranty, and at this price, it’s still a good value.

If you’re all set on the mobile storage front, though, we also have deals on various video games, the 128GB 9.7-inch iPad, Instant Pots, and, yes, the entire original run of Cowboy Bebop. Have a look for yourself below.
