deFrost* #55 Interactive Cities – What's Next?

12 November 2019
Sydney

People have been talking about 'Smart cities' for years. What does this actually mean? How is technology supposed to make our lives better?

About this Event

Frost*collective is at the forefront of the changing face of cities with our award-winning work in place visioning, smart wayfinding and destination branding.

The Collective has forged a new partnership with one of the world’s leading urban technology firms, Umbrellium, to further its leadership in the convergence of technology and place.

deFrost #55 will be an insightful look at current trends, with Umbrellium Founding Partner Usman Haque* exploring the way places and technology can co-exist to shape smart communities.

This will be followed by a forum and Q&A led by Vince Frost.

Join us for a fascinating evening that will set the scene for next generation thinking for anyone involved in the planning of spaces including architects, urban planners, developers, government and designers.

*Tuesday 12 November 2019, 6–8pm. Frost*collective: 16 Eveleigh Street, Level 1, Redfern, NSW 2016*
