Role Details

Are you studying graphic design and looking to gain real work experience?

We are an award winning technology start-up in the growth stage of our business. We have a fun office culture and team vibe, and are equally hard working and passionate about building awesome consumer experiences – and getting sh*t done.

This role will suit a final (or second last) year graphic design student or recent graduate who wants to apply their passion for digital design, digital experiences and innovation in a cutting edge app targeting millennial Australians.

By taking on this role, you'll be able to add the following skills and experience to your rockstar CV,
– Led mobile design application for both native iOS and Android devices
– Created a sweet desktop and web experience that had an X% conversion rate for user sign-ups
– Used evidence based research and analytics to make UX/UI design decisions
– Designed new and market leading product features

– Worked and participated in a collaborative, cross-function team to design an A+ multi-platform product experience

The hours required of this role are flexible that can be worked around your studies or other part-time work. The position is unpaid and should be considered as an internship opportunity that will enable you to add professional experience and projects to your CV.

There may be scope for a paid position to be offered in the near future.
