Elon Musk Taught Himself to Code. Now It’s Your Turn.

Disclosure: Our goal is to feature products and services that we think you’ll find interesting and useful. If you purchase them, Entrepreneur may get a small share of the revenue from the sale from our commerce partners.

When Elon Musk was a kid, he didn’t just play video games—he created them. Fast forward a few decades, and he’s one of the biggest success stories with SpaceX and Tesla. You might not launch rockets anytime soon, but how about a website for your business? Or that unique app idea you want to bring to life?

Learning to code isn’t as tough as it sounds. Actually, this early Black Friday deal makes it easier than ever, with 15 e-courses and a beginner-friendly development environment, Microsoft Visual Studio Pro. Check out now to get lifelong access to both for $55.97 (a $1,999 value) before the bundles sell out.

It’s time to channel your inner Elon Musk

No more waiting on that website or app—or the need to hire a costly developer to make it happen. Dive into courses that match your goals:

- Build websites: JavaScript, Python, and Ruby on Rails
- Designing apps: Flutter and Dart for mobile, and Java and Python for desktop
- Creating games: C++ and JavaScript
- AI and machine learning: Python and ChatGPT
- Database management: MySQL and SQL

Lifetime access to the bundle means you never have to feel rushed when studying coding. Just don’t wait too long because these bundles could sell out—head to checkout now.

It’s a good idea to follow along in Microsoft Visual Studio Pro as you watch course materials. This way, you get hands-on practice. This development environment is excellent for beginners, helping correct your mistakes as you go and offering intelligent auto-complete suggestions.

Real-time collaboration features will come in handy when you start to work on that website or app. Imagine finally being able to launch your e-commerce website or app that you made from scratch. It might even be better than Elon’s “X” app.

Order your beginner’s coding bundle now so you don’t miss this early Black Friday deal: $55.97 for lifetime access to 15 e-courses and Microsoft Visual Studio Pro (a $1,999 value). No coupon is needed to get this price.
