

Everything coming to Netflix in January

The new year is just around the corner, and that means a whole new slate of movies and TV shows to watch on your streaming service of choice will soon be on their way. Netflix will be kicking the new year off in a big way, and it comes down to four words: Tim Burton's original Batman.

Okay, that might not be a huge slam dunk for everyone else, but I'm certainly excited about it. The service will also be adding a wide selection of new original movies, like Mike Flanagan's thriller Before I Wake (January 5th), the Jack Black indie comedy The Polka King (January 12th), and A Futile and Stupid Gesture, the Will Forte comedy about the origins of National Lampoon (arriving on January 26th, shortly after its premiere at the 2018 Sundance Film Festival). There's plenty coming on the television side, as well, with the fourth season of Grace and Frankie arriving on January 19th, the second season of the rebooted One Day at a Time debuting on January 26th, and the anime series Devilman Crybaby coming on January 5th.

That said, it's not all good news. E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial will be leaving the service on January 1st, along with Forrest Gump and Free Willy. (Note: not all films leaving the service are created equal.) Even more devastating is the loss of all six seasons of Lost. That's right: If you want to watch the entire journey on Netflix you only have until January 4th before you'll be forced to go elsewhere. It'll be a regular purgatory. The complete list of titles is below.
