

Free On-Demand Webinar: How to Implement Mental Health & Wellness in the Workplace

According to studies, more employees are suffering from stress and workplace burnout as a result of the pandemic. What can leaders do to become more mindful of employees' mental health and implement healthier cultures? Comparably CEO and Entrepreneur's Leadership Lessons series host Jason Nazar finds out when he speaks to the CEO of TIME100's Most Influential Companies of 2021 – CeCe Morken of Headspace.

Reaching 70 million users in 190 countries, it was one of the first meditation apps in the world and remains a leader in mindfulness and mental training. Headspace also offers its products and services to more than 2,000 well-known companies to help them build healthier, more productive cultures and higher performing organizations. Morken will share best practices on the topic as well as the most valuable leadership lessons from her 35-year-career building and growing organizations, from start-ups to global, publicly traded companies like Intuit. Topics include:

- The one trait that all successful leaders have in common
- What a listening tour is and why it's important
- The biggest mistake you can make in a sales pitch or deck
- Tips to creating a more productive and higher-performing workplace
- Best practices on mindfully returning to in-person/hybrid work
- How leaders can incorporate mental wellness into the technical aspects of work
