Entrepreneurs, business leaders, and employees need help like never before. American businesses are in a crisis mode. They need to know how to make money—even, and especially, in difficult times. Enter Kent Billingsley, known as America's "Revenue Growth Architect." Billingsley is an international expert who helps business leaders scale their growth and profitability using the resources they already have.

In his new book, Entrepreneur to Millionaire, Billingsley shares his proven roadmap for entrepreneurs to triple sales, revenue, and profits using resources they already have. What makes Billingsley's method so different is that it isn't about starting, running, and growing a business; instead, today's entrepreneurial success requires leveraging, scaling, and intelligent design to make sure every part of a company is creating money and ushering in new clients.

In this webinar, Billingsley will illustrate his four-phase sequential approach—Revenue Ready, Market Ready, Go to Market, and Own the Market. These powerful concepts and proven methods accelerate entrepreneurial success by shattering many commonly-held but stale growth beliefs, including the concept that “you don’t have to spend money to make money.”
