

Google & JavaScript: Googlebot's Indexing Can Miss Metadata, Canonicals & Status Codes

At Google I/O yesterday, Google detailed some issues surrounding the use of JavaScript when it comes to both crawling and indexing content. One thing they revealed is that Googlebot will process JavaScript heavy pages in two phases – an initial crawl, and then a second one a few days later that will render the JavaScript [...]

The post Google & JavaScript: Googlebot's Indexing Can Miss Metadata, Canonicals & Status Codes appeared first on The SEM Post.

<http://www.thesempost.com/google-javascript-googlebots-indexing-can-miss-metadata-canonicals-status-codes/>