How Google Has Been Supporting British Black-Owned Businesses

Minority-owned businesses make up a sixth of the six million businesses registered across the U.K., generating revenue of at least $100 billion (74 billion pounds) a year, research by Open Think Tank revealed in February. And yet repeatedly these entrepreneurs share the same stories of a struggle to generate start-up funding in comparison to white male-founded businesses.

Recommended articles
https://www.adweek.com/commerce/how-google-has-been-supporting-british-black-owned-businesses/