Lincoln’s massive digital dash fits right into the new Navigator

Lincoln is making a big change to the largest vehicle in its lineup by adding a panoramic display across the dashboard. The 2025 Navigator SUV is the automaker’s second vehicle to get the Android-based digital dashboard developed by Ford, with its first implementation introduced in the 2024 Lincoln Nautilus.

The new Navigator, which is making its debut during Monterey Car Week, takes the Nautilus’ Panoramic Display (technically, it’s two screens) with the Lincoln Digital Experience and drops it in with a more stylish and open flair and adds contrasting speakers to the sides. Meanwhile, the same continuous curved displays in the Nautilus go pillar to pillar, look more integrated, and its trim lines up with the doors.
