

'Literally Our Dream Scenario': Man Stuns Internet After Being the Only Passenger on a Flight

The luxury of flying private and having an entire plane to yourself, with no lines and no disgruntled strangers, may seem like a pipe dream for most.

But one man is now going viral for accidentally getting the private plane experience after his flight was delayed so many times that nobody else stuck around.

In a video that's been viewed over 32.1 million times, passenger Phil Stinger tells viewers that his flight was delayed 18 hours and that "everyone else gave up."

Stinger was on an American Airlines flight leaving Oklahoma City, destined for Charlotte, North Carolina.

Related: Delta Flight Attendant Goes Viral Helping Nervous Passenger

The flight was originally supposed to depart at 6:20 a.m. but didn't take off until just after 12 a.m. the next day.

@phil.stringer 18-hour delay turned this flight into a private party! ☺☺? Watch how the amazing crew and I made the most of it! #americanairlines #flightattendant #airplanetiktok #privateparty #FlightFun #delayedflight #fyp #viral 🎵 Makeba – Jain

He spent his time happily joking around with flight crew members (who he said were pulled from their hotel to help service him on the flight).

Stinger shows the flight attendants going through the full boarding process and safety demonstrations – on a completely empty plane.

Viewers were loving the content and how the crew, and Stinger, seemed to be in good spirits.

“This was probably the highlight of their week. Getting paid to just take care of one person? Sign me up lol,” one user wrote.

Related: Flight Attendant's Intercom Rant about Extra Fees Goes Viral

“This makes me smile!! They still flew for you,” another said.

Other flight attendants in the comment section were praising Stinger's crew and confirming that this is, in fact, the dream.

“I was a flight attendant for 10 years, and this happened to me one time. Our passenger's name was Ben and I will never forget it!! Such a blast!

“Flight attendant here – this is literally our dream scenario, esp for a delayed flight. So glad you had a nice time,” another heartwarminglly added.

Stinger safely arrived in Charlotte just after 3 a.m. the next day.

American Airlines did not immediately respond to Entrepreneur's request for comment.

<https://www.entrepreneur.com/business-news/man-goes-viral-for-being-only-passenger-on-flight/454894>