Microsoft Paint is getting a Copilot button, too

Windows Insiders will soon see a Copilot icon in one more place: Paint. Insiders in the Canary and Dev channels will see the new button thanks to an update rolling out now, putting AI tools in one location. Clicking the Copilot button in the task bar will reveal a dropdown menu with generative features like Cocreator, Image Creator, and Generative Erase. Microsoft has been on a mission to put a Copilot icon everywhere it can — from your keyboard to the taskbar — and Paint is just the latest place for it to pop up.

With today's update, Windows 11 Insiders are also getting an update to the AI search opened up in preview earlier this month. Now, the "improved search" will allow you to find photos in the cloud with natural language; previously, AI search was limited to local files. When you perform a search, you'll see the cloud files show up alongside the local images. This update is rolling out to Windows 11 Insiders in the Dev and Beta channels.

https://www.theverge.com/news/604509/microsoft-paint-copilot-button