

Reddit is testing 'official' labels for profiles and making parts of its app compatible with screen readers

Navigation: left navigation menu, profile drawer, and bottom tab bar i.e. buttons are entry points to home and community feeds, create a post, chat, and inbox (mid-August)

Community page (mid-August)

Post detail page (mid-August)

Home & Popular feed (late August)

<https://www.theverge.com/2023/7/26/23809017/reddit-official-labels-profiles-accessibility-screen-readers>