Shillington Post 08—The Creative Women Issue

Exciting news! Now you can enjoy the latest issue of our in-house publication anywhere and everywhere. Read Shillington Post 08—The Creative Women Issue online.

In this eighth issue of the Post, we're joining the chorus to celebrate creative women. Twelve female industry leaders give their advice for the next generation of designers—regardless of gender. Discover surprising stats about females in the creative industry. We interview three amazing Shillington graduates who launched their own zine. Emily Comfort shares a case study highlighting the behind-the-scenes of her design practice. Six teachers pay tribute to a woman who’s influenced them creatively. We explore the legacy of Margaret Calvert, the woman who was responsible for redesigning every single road sign across the UK in the late 1950s. And, we recap on striking visual results from our recent International Women’s Day Creative Challenge.

We hope this issue inspires all readers. Let’s work together for a future where success has nothing to do with your gender, and everything to do with your drive, initiative and bravery. That’s what matters most.

Want a physical copy of Shillington Post? Join us for an upcoming Info Session or pop into one of our six campuses.

https://www.shillingtoneducation.com/blog/shillington-post-08-creative-women-issue/