Sinclair Names Narinder Sahai EVP and CFO

Sinclair has named Narinder Sahai as executive vice president and chief financial officer.

He takes over fo Lucy Rutishauser, who will retire later this year. She'll stay on as evp to support the transition and then take on the role of Senior Advisor.

Sinclair said Sahai brings more than two decades of financial leadership across publicly traded and private-equity-backed companies, with "deep expertise" across the full breadth of finance functions, including capital markets, treasury, controllership, investor relations, mergers and acquisitions, and planning and analysis. He also has strong technology expertise, including artificial intelligence and machine learning, from his Amazon Web Services (AWS) experience and undergraduate degree in electronics and electrical communication engineering.

Before joining Sinclair, Sahai was CFO at Arcis, a leisure and hospitality operator, where he led financial planning, accounting, tax, treasury, and debt investor relations. He was CFO of RumbleOn, Inc. before that.

Sahai worked as Head of Worldwide Go-to-Market Finance for Compute and AI/Machine Learning services at AWS, providing financial leadership for specialist sales teams across global markets. Before AWS, Sahai served as senior vice president, treasurer and investor relations at Target Hospitality Corp., where he managed all investor relations and capital markets activities for the company's equity public market debut and executed comprehensive debt financing transactions.

“Narinder’s proven track record as CFO of both publicly traded and private-equity-backed companies, combined with his operational discipline and strategic financial leadership, makes him exceptionally well-suited to guide Sinclair through its next phase of growth,” said Chris Ripley, president and CEO of Sinclair. “He brings a unique perspective having worked in multiple industries-including cloud and AI-focused companies. Narinder is a proven C-suite leader with a strong history of executing value-creating strategies, optimizing capital structures, and driving margin improvement. We’re looking forward to him building on our culture of success, industry leadership, and best-in-class finance team, especially as we advance commercialization strategies around ATSC 3.0 and continue to deliver long-term value for our stakeholders.”

Sahai holds a Bachelor of Engineering in Electronics and Electrical Communication Engineering, graduating as valedictorian from Thapar University in India, and a Master of Business Administration with High Distinction from the Ross School of Business at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Sahai is also a CFA® Charterholder.

“I am honored to join Sinclair during such an exciting period of transformation and growth,” said Sahai. “Having worked across diverse industries-from automotive and energy to consumer and technology-I have a deep appreciation for companies that are successfully transforming themselves while maintaining strong operational discipline. Sinclair’s unique position at the intersection of local media, sports, and emerging technology creates tremendous opportunities. From the company’s leadership position in local broadcasting, combined with its pioneering work in ATSC 3.0 technology, the strength of Tennis Channel, and innovative ventures portfolio, I see significant potential to drive value creation for all stakeholders. I look forward to working with Chris, the Board, and the entire team to execute on Sinclair’s strategic vision while maintaining the strong financial discipline that has positioned the company for success.”
