

These are the best Cyber Monday TV deals

With a pair of next-gen video game consoles now on the market, it's a very good time to be shopping for a new 4K TV that can best showcase their capabilities. Even if gaming isn't your thing, Cyber Monday always bring about excellent discounts on sets from many of the top brands like Samsung, LG, Vizio, Sony, TCL, and others. Whether you're ready to spend over $1,000 or are looking for something more on the budget side, odds are you can find something to your liking.

Looking for more than just a TV? Check out our updating list of the best Cyber Monday deals you can still get right now.

The best TV deals for Xbox Series X and PlayStation 5 owners

The Xbox Series X and PS5 do much more than just play games in 4K. They support HDR, variable refresh rate (in the case of the X), and can output games at up to 120Hz. This makes games feel smoother and more responsive than ever before. Variable refresh can eliminate unsightly tearing and make any dips in frame rate unnoticeable, and this – along with 120Hz support – is also something you'll find on the $300 Xbox Series S.

If you plan on getting one of the new consoles (or already have), finding a TV that can get the most from them could be tricky. Generally speaking, you'll have to buy a very recent set, and you'll want to ensure that it supports the newer HDMI 2.1 specification. But buying a TV released this year doesn't have to mean breaking the bank.

I've picked out the below TVs as the best options you can get for one of the next-gen gaming consoles in 2020. All of them should take advantage of everything the Xbox Series X, Xbox Series S, and PlayStation 5 can do.

]]>

LG CX 55-inch OLED

- $1,499
- $1,899
- 22% off

Prices taken at time of publishing.

LG's CX-series OLED is basically the ultimate TV for next-gen gaming consoles – and it delivers gorgeous image quality for everything else, too. Available in 48, 55, 65, and 77-inch sizes, the CX is one of those TVs you'll get enjoyment from every time you power it on.

<https://www.theverge.com/21591567/black-friday-tv-deals-sale-cyber-monday>