

Trump's first 100 days: all the news impacting the tech industry

Rosenworcel said the commission was rejecting complaints that “seek to weaponize the licensing authority of the FCC in a way that is fundamentally at odds with the First Amendment”. Then, on Wednesday, the FCC said in a series of orders the complaints had been dismissed “prematurely based on an insufficient investigatory record”.

<https://www.theverge.com/24348851/donald-trump-presidency-tech-science-news>