Job Description

You'll be joining our expanding and ever-evolving in-house design team, working in collaboration with teachers, content editors and illustrators to produce Twinkl's lovely teaching resources. Our production team is split into unique product packages that turn teacher created content into fun and user-friendly resources that are used by millions of educators across the globe. As such, you should be passionate about education and excited to contribute to a market leading, forward-thinking global business.

An ideal candidate would have strong enthusiasm for design, especially layout and editorial design. They would have the ability to bring outside inspiration into their designs to create exciting and innovative concepts that are still both functional and accessible. We aim to create resources that will engage children and make them excited about learning.

You'll be trained on Twinkl's brand style, Agile production methods (such as scrum) and have the opportunity to get involved in a variety of exciting projects across different areas of the business.

Please submit a reduced design portfolio (no more than 5 pages) on a PDF with your application. We are unable to open external sites so please send in a reduced portfolio as a PDF.
