Twitter’s API shutdown and botpocalypse begins

Twitter’s API access continues to be a mess.

Apparently some researchers are being told that they could have to pay at least $500,000 a year to access a tiny portion of Twitter’s data. I recommend being skeptical about anything this company says until it actually happens, but given all its shenanigans around API access, this wouldn’t exactly be surprising.

https://www.theverge.com/2023/4/6/23673067/twitter-api-shutdown-bots-botpocalypse-begins