Over the past decade, drones have become a fun hobby for kids and adults alike. But drones also have a variety of practical applications for businesses. In fact, a recent LinkedIn article says drones are revolutionizing business. For example, those in real estate can use drones to capture footage of land or of homes from a view that wouldn't otherwise be available without spending a lot of money piloting a plane.

Advantageous to many other businesses like agriculture, advertising and marketing, entertainment, event planning, construction, and so much more, it may be worth it to start thinking about how a drone could benefit your business. During this limited-time sales event, we are offering two top 4K drones – the Alpha Z Pro and the Flying Fox – for just $109.97 (reg. $398) through October 15.

The two drones have a lot of shared features. For starters, they both have a 4K wide-angle front camera with 90-degree adjustment and a 720p bottom camera. And with their Wi-Fi capabilities, you can take pictures and videos, and enjoy a first-person view via real-time transmission through the app.

Both drones also have updated features like Altitude Hold mode for a more stable hovering fly and one-key return so the drone can return to you automatically. They can also ascend, descend, go forward, backward, left, right, and roll 360 degrees.
