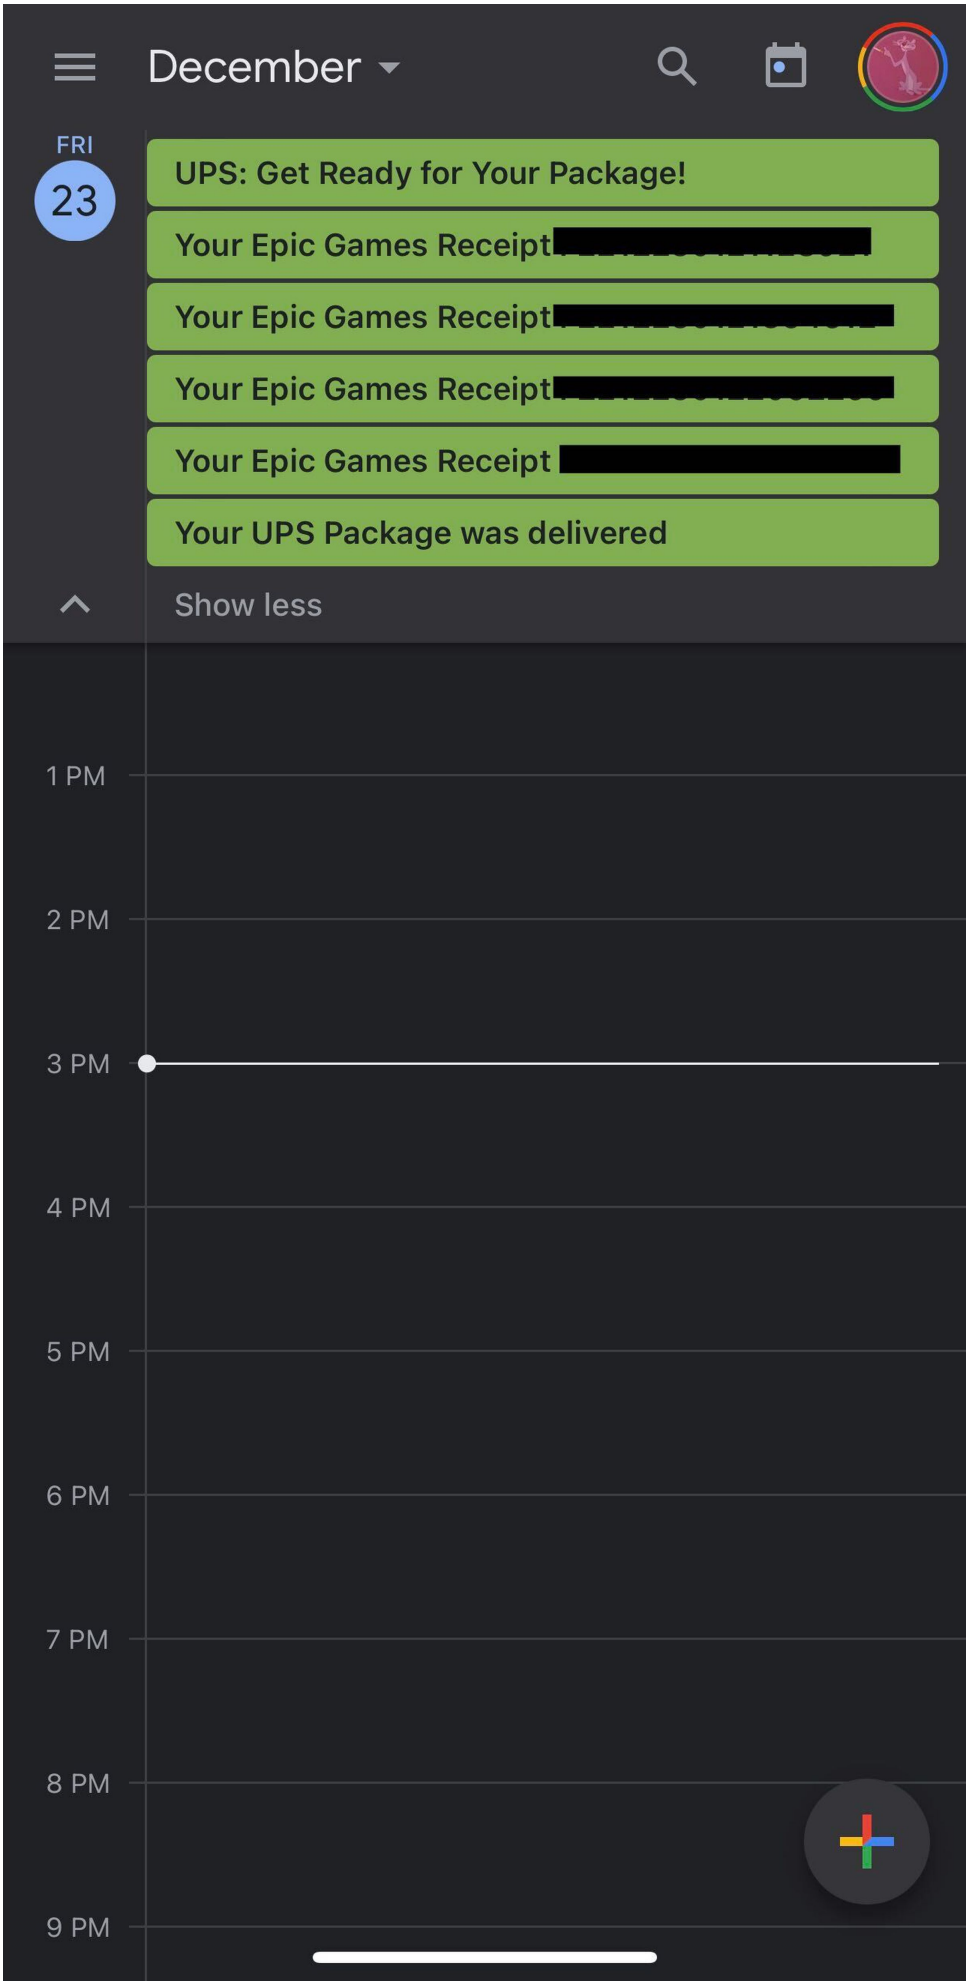
Users report Google Calendar bug creating random, fake events

Numerous users have reported experiencing an odd glitch in the Google Calendar mobile app over the past few days. The app appears to be creating random, nonexistent all-day events based on the content of users' Gmail messages.

As 9to5Google (who reported the news earlier today) notes, various sorts of emails including delivery notifications, purchase receipts, and newsletters appear to be showing up as all-day calendar events. Some Verge staffers who use the Google calendar app are experiencing this glitch. "It's like finding landmines in my calendar," one writer (whose calendar is screenshotted below) complained.

Google has not yet responded to a request for comment.



December
FRI
23
UPS: Get Ready for Your Package!
Your Epic Games Receipt
Your Epic Games Receipt
Your Epic Games Receipt
Your Epic Games Receipt
Your UPS Package was delivered
Show less
1 PM
2 PM
3 PM
4 PM
5 PM
6 PM
7 PM
8 PM
9 PM