What’s on your desk, Kylie Robison?

Kylie Robison is The Verge’s senior reporter covering artificial intelligence. Previously, she worked at Fortune, where she covered Twitter; before that, she covered software developer culture (“a beat,” she says, “I made up and loved”) for Business Insider. “I’ve always been obsessed with technology in an extremely online way,” she adds, “and The Verge is filled with people who are on the same wavelength.”

We asked Kylie to tell us a bit about her home office setup.

It looks like your office space is right outside the kitchen.

It is! I live in a studio, but when I tell people that, they say it’s a bit too big to be called that, so my friends and I joke that it’s a studio deluxe. My living room is also my bedroom, I have a dining nook that I use for my office, and my kitchen is right behind me.

a:hover]:text-black [&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-black dark:[&>a:hover]:text-gray-e9 dark:[&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-gray-63 [&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-13 dark:[&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-63″>A comfortable space with photos, tech, and toys.

Could you tell us a bit about the desk itself?

It’s a Mittzon desk from Ikea. I wanted something adjustable in a light oak color, and it has great cable management stuff in the back.

And your chair?

It’s a beat-to-death standard Amazon desk chair. I should probably upgrade soon…

Tell us about the various tech devices you’re using.

I just bought a new MacBook Pro M4 that I adore. I have a Dell Ultra HD 4K Monitor (that’s no longer available) and an Asus ProArt monitor. I have no idea how long I’ve had either or where I even got them from. I have a pair of first-gen Apple AirPod Max headphones. I have two pairs of Ray-Ban Metas. (One is a limited-edition pair.) Last but not least, a Vergecast-mandated Audio-Technica microphone (they told me my Blue Yeti sucked).

a:hover]:text-black [&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-black dark:[&>a:hover]:text-gray-e9 dark:[&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-gray-63 [&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-13 dark:[&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-63″>Family photos and a large CD-R.

a:hover]:text-black [&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-black dark:[&>a:hover]:text-gray-e9 dark:[&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-gray-63 [&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-13 dark:[&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-63″>Two Sonny Angels offer friendly smiles.

a:hover]:text-black [&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-black dark:[&>a:hover]:text-gray-e9 dark:[&>a:hover]:shadow-underline-gray-63 [&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-13 dark:[&>a]:shadow-underline-gray-63″>Fang wonders why we are invading his space.

And last but not least, please introduce us to your cat!

That’s Fang! My grandpa likes to call him Fangster. Fun fact: I named him Fang on a whim, and four years after I got him, the vet said he was having teeth problems that would require the removal of quite a few. In the end, the only teeth he got to keep were his fangs. Weird, huh?

Anything else we didn’t cover that you’d like to add?

Whoever sees this — don’t yell at me about my cord setup. I gave up so quickly. Please keep me in your thoughts and prayers.

Photography by Kylie Robison / The Verge

https://www.theverge.com/24303127/home-office-desk-nintendo