Windows 10’s April 2018 Update is now available

Microsoft’s Windows 10 April 2018 Update is available today and ready to download. After months of testing, Microsoft is making its latest Windows 10 update available for anyone to install today. Like previous updates, Microsoft is rolling it out in stages and you’ll have to manually update today to get it early, or wait until it’s more broadly available on Windows Update on May 9th.

The Windows 10 April 2018 Update includes a number of new features. Timeline is the biggest addition, and it lets you see what apps are running across all your PCs, but also what apps and activities you’ve used on your Windows 10 PC in the past 30 days. Microsoft is also adding a new dictation option with this update, a mute tab feature for Microsoft Edge, nearby sharing options, and plenty more. Here’s how to get the update today:

- Download the Update Assistant from Microsoft’s website
- Launch the Windows10Upgrade.exe file
- Click Update Now
- If your device is compatible with the Windows 10 April 2018 update, the next button will let you start the upgrade

If you want to get an ISO and wipe your machine, you can simply download the Media Creation Tool from Microsoft’s website and create a bootable USB key to clean install the latest Windows 10 April 2018 Update.
